

Remo Registration

First, you need to register your own address with Remo and create an account to use Remo.

However, if you have already created a Remo account with the e-mail address you used to register for this symposium, you do not need to create a new Remo account.

To participate in a Remo Poster Session, you do not need to install any special software, but access it with a browser such as Chrome or Firefox.

Remo seems to identify users only by their email address.
